Canada to allow return of suspect

COURTS Canada will comply with a court order compelling it to allow the return of an alleged terror suspect who has spent the last six years in Sudan, Justice Minister Rob Nicholson said Thursday.

A Federal Court judge ruled on June 4 that Ottawa had to arrange the return of Abousfiyan Abdelrazik, a Canadian man currently taking refuge in the country's embassy in Sudan.

The Conservative government has until now refused to offer assistance or issue a passport to Abdelrazik, who is on a United Nations no-fly list that names him as an associate of al-Qaida.

MP calls for random DUI tests

DRUNK DRIVING Canadian motorists should be given random roadside tests to help combat impaired driving, a parliamentary committee recommends.

Conservative MP Ed Fast (Abbotsford), chair of the justice and human rights committee, said yesterday even though the move might be controversial, something has to be done because impaired driving remains the No. 1 criminal cause of death in Canada.

Currently, the law requires reasonable grounds before police can administer a breathalyser, but under the committee proposal that requirement would disappear.

Fast told a press conference the all-party committee decided random checks like those used elsewhere, including Ireland and Australia, would be the most effective deterrent available to stop motorists from driving after drinking.

The committee has concluded that randomized breath testing is the most effective deterrent tool available to the police. It increases the probability of an impaired driver coming into contact with police and therefore increases the risk of being caught," he said.

In its report tabled in the House of Commons yesterday, the committee said random checks would reinforce that driving is a privilege and not a right. However, Fast noted there is little doubt it would face a constitutional challenge.

Ward appears in court

Boy is second youth in care facing murder rap

VICTORIA HANDYSIDES
victoria.handysides@metronews.ca

A lanky, 16-year-old boy stood stoic in a courtroom

Thursday, appearing on second-degree murder charges in the death of Curtis Osterlund.

Osterlund, a 39-year-old mechanic, was found stabbed to death in the parking lot of Londonderry Junior High last weekend.

The youth, who is a ward of the province, was found at a home on 94 Street and 120 Avenue. He was arrested and charged with second-degree murder and possession of an offensive weapon.

The boy is the second youth in the province's care to be charged with murder in recent weeks. Last week, two 14-year-old boys appeared via closed-circuit television in a Sherwood Park courtroom in connection with the murders of Barry Boenke, 68, and Susan Trudel, 50.

Six youths, ranging in ages 14 to 19, have been charged in connection with six of the last 10 homicides in the Edmonton area.

A Grant MacEwan criminologist says there's a trend of youths being connected to violent crimes.

"These kids know they're just going to get a slap on the wrist," Bill Pitt said. "... they're playing the system something wicked."

Troubled youth are slipping through the cracks, he said, adding careful placement of criminal youth, institutionalization, and revisions to the Youth Criminal Justice Act, including harsher penalties for murder may quell the alarming pattern.

"We're starting to see a knock on the door that something is wrong here," he said. "These kids grow up very quickly, and some of them are just damn well not wanted. We see a theme of rejection and abandonment with violent criminals."

Child and Family Services officials did confirm the youth was under guardianship of the province, but was living with family at the time of the stabbing.

Homicide Det. Bill Clark said the accused has been uncooperative with police and "invoked his right to remain silent."

No apology from Evans

Finance minister tries to clarify comments she made about parenting

victoria.handysides@metronews.ca

Uproar sparked by Iris Evans' remarks on proper parenting inspired the finance minister to clarify Thursday, though she did not apologize.

In a speech on Alberta's economy to the Economic Club of Canada Wednesday, Evans made mention of children's financial understanding and parenting.

"They've understood perfectly well that when you're raising children, you don't both go off to work and leave them for somebody else to raise," she said Wednesday. "This is not a statement against daycare. It's a statement about their belief in the importance of raising children properly."

Evans declined media interviews, but prepared a statement.

"I understand some people were offended by some of what I said. I did not intend to suggest there is only one way to raise a child,"

Evans said in the statement released Thursday.

She claimed the original remarks were aimed at understanding money and finance "starts at home, not in schools," and that her comments were a personal reflection on her experience raising three sons.

She added that she's worked for most of her life while raising children, and realizes every family unit and situation is unique, while crediting parents who are forced to make difficult decisions.

The Alberta Liberals, outraged at Evans' comments, called for her resignation, claiming her clarification was "half-hearted."

"It's not particularly strong," said Alberta Liberals spokesman Michael Spears. "She isn't truly sorry for what she said."

SUSTAINABILITY A major global event that brought the world to Edmonton from June 14-18 to discuss environmental sustainability ended on Thursday.

The ICLEI World Congress connects mayors, local government officials and staff, representatives from international agencies, national governments, donors and other partners every three years to discuss environmental sustainability.

"People have said they have been to a hundred different congresses and this was the best," said Mayor Stephen Mandel Thursday at city hall.

"It was very well attended and some great things came out about city sustainability, how we need to be more compact, how we need to look at more biodiversity and how we need to be a much more efficient (and) effective city."

Founded in 1990 with more than 200 local governments from 43 countries, ICLEI develops and runs a broad range of campaigns and programs that address local sustainable issues from across the globe.

Mayor Mandel said the last few days have been very "interesting and fun" after networking with leaders from all over the world.

This was the first time the event was hosted in Canada, said Mayor Mandel, pointing out that Edmonton was chosen for its historical strength on environmental sustainability.

"I think it's a real show of how Edmonton is respected around the world for their environmental prowess."

Car Insurance Myth #3: If I Switch Insurance Companies, I Will Lose My Loyalty Discount.

Truth:

You may lose your loyalty discount (if you had one in the first place), but that doesn't necessarily mean you'll pay more or that you can't save a bundle by switching insurers.

The fact is, some (but not all) insurance companies may provide a small discount on your premium if you've been with them for a long time – but that small discount can quickly become irrelevant if the lowest cost insurer has a rate for you that is hundreds or thousands of dollars less than what you're currently paying. After all, what good is 5% off of an annual rate of $1,500 (a $75 savings) when you could pay $1,100 with another company?

Privacy advocates worried by controversial bill

Privacy and security

Canada's police and security forces would get greater access to the Internet and wireless telecommunications records of millions of Canadians under a bill tabled Thursday by the federal Conservatives.

On the eve of the summer parliamentary break, the government introduced another attempt to modernize electronic surveillance laws — one that privacy advocates fear might still go too far.

"This legislation is about gaining power to get information which previously you needed a warrant to get," said Richard Rosenberg, a spokesman for the B.C. Civil Liberties Association and president of the and communications of a client into a kind of "quick freeze."

• The company would have to retain the customer's information, and not delete it.

province's Freedom of Information and Privacy Association. "I think that is a blow with respect to individual privacy interests."

Privacy advocates were not included at an elaborate news conference where two federal cabinet ministers, flanked by child protection advocates and municipal police officers, said they had struck a balance between crime-fighting and individual privacy. Justice Minister Rob Nicholson and Public Safety Minister Peter Van Loan pitched the changes as key to "getting the bad guys" in the 21st century.

Privacy Commissioner Jennifer Stoddart's office, which criticized similar previous proposals, said she would be carefully examining the changes.

A long, deep canyon, similar to the one left, and the remains of beaches are perhaps the clearest evidence yet of a standing lake on the surface of Mars – one that apparently contained water when the planet was supposed to have already dried up, scientists said Wednesday. Iran's Intelligence Ministry said on Thursday it had uncovered a foreign-linked terrorist plot to plant bombs in mosques and other crowded places in Tehran during the country's June 12 presidential election.

State broadcaster IRIB quoted a ministry statement as saying several terrorist groups had been discovered, adding they were linked to Iran's foreign enemies, including Israel.

Members of one of the uncovered networks were planning to plant bombs on election day at various crowded Tehran spots, including Ershad and Al-Nabi mosques," the statement said, referring to two prominent mosques in the capital. It said the plot was uncovered on election day.

Britain freezes Iranian assets

Iranian assets of nearly one billion pounds are frozen in Britain under international sanctions imposed over Tehran's nuclear program, the British government said on Thursday. The statement gave no further details. Iran has been gripped this week by its most violent demonstrations since the 1979 Islamic revolution, sparked by its disputed presidential election last Friday.

Meanwhile, tens of thousands of Iranians, wearing black and carrying candles, marched Thursday to mourn those killed in mass protests against a presidential election they and defeated candidate Mir Hossein Mousavi say was rigged.

Chanting "Allahu Akbar," they massed in downtown Imam Khomeini Square, responding to Mousavi's call for people to gather in mosques or at peaceful rallies to show solidarity with the victims and their families. Iranian state media has reported seven or eight people killed in protests since the election results were published on June 13. Scores of reformists have been arrested across the country and authorities have cracked down on both foreign and domestic media.

A spokesman for the Guardian Council said it had begun "careful examination" of 646 complaints submitted after the vote. REUTERS

Mother sentenced for killing three babies

FRANCE A French woman who strangled three of her newborn babies and stored two of them in the family freezer was sentenced to eight years in jail Thursday after a trial that focused on her psychiatric problems.

The case of Veronique Courjault, who gave birth in secret three times between 1999 and 2003, came to light in 2006 when her husband, trying to make space in the freezer, found the frozen bodies of two babies he had no idea were his own.

Eventually, Veronique Courjault confessed that she had been pregnant three times without her husband's knowledge and had strangled the three babies.

The couple already had two older children, now aged 12 and 14.

Police initially suspected the husband of complicity because they could not understand how he failed to notice his wife's pregnancies.

He was cleared after an investigation established no one who had seen Veronique Courjault during her pregnancies had noticed any signs.

Neither her physical appearance nor her behaviour had changed noticeably.

Much work remains for LGBT rights

Wendy Cukier

Pride Week marks remarkable progress: Same-sex benefits, same-sex marriage, and recent human rights decisions make Canada a global leader on lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgendered (LGBT) rights.

Corporate leaders set the tone. Ed Clark, CEO of TD Bank Financial Group, proclaimed: "I don't want people to feel they have to hide who they are because they're afraid we'll discriminate against them. In fact, I look forward to the day when all employees feel that their sexual orientation is a non-issue."

Attracting and retaining the best and the brightest drives corporate commitment. LGBT consumers — the "pink dollar" — are influential. Moreover, research shows 42 per cent of straight consumers will not buy from companies deemed homophobic.

But growing up LGBT is tough: According to Mental Health America, the average LGBT teen hears anti-gay slurs 26 times a day. EGALE Canada's 2008 survey showed 67 per cent of LGBT teens felt unsafe at school and only half felt accepted. Rejection or fear of rejection by their family often fuels desperation. Forty per cent of LGBT youth report having had suicidal thoughts and they are 3.4 times more at risk for attempting suicide.

On average, six per cent of runaway youth identify as LGBT and in some communities rates are much higher. LGBT teens are also more prone to high risk behaviours and drug abuse.

Susan Magerman teaches in Toronto's Triangle Program, the only Canadian high school program specifically aimed at LGBT youth. More than 70 per cent of her students, aged 14-21, do not live at home. Some have been kicked out. Some have fled abuse. Some are searching for somewhere they belong.

Most students have been marginalized and traumatized. Some have experienced homophobia, harassment and abuse since primary school.

Magerman says, "Once they are in a safe and supportive environment, where they no longer have to worry about their safety all the time, they thrive."

Her wish? "That all kids, regardless of sexual orientation, are supported at home, at school and in their communities so the Triangle program does not need to exist."

Remember, while we march with Pride to celebrate progress, much work remains.

We are more alike than we are different

UrbanCompass

I used to be gay. At least that's what many of the people I worked with in Edmonton during the 1970s thought. Their speculation on my sexual preference was based on some rather superficial analysis.

I wore fashion-forward clothing. I colour co-ordinated my wardrobe. I carried a shoulder bag. And I was known to have done some acting. What else could I be but gay for heaven's sake?

I am pleased to say that, for the most part, that kind of stereotyping has disappeared. Those of us who do not breathe through our mouths, or drag our knuckles when we walk, know that one's sexual preference tells us very little about a person other than who he or she is sexually interested in. The variations within the LGBT community mirror those in the heterosexual community. Time has taught us that we are more alike than we are different.

As Edmonton winds up its Pride Week events, other cities are getting ready to start theirs. Though our Pride parade is much smaller than Toronto's, it has grown steadily during the last few years.

As an indication of how things have changed, this year the parade included representatives from the provincial government.

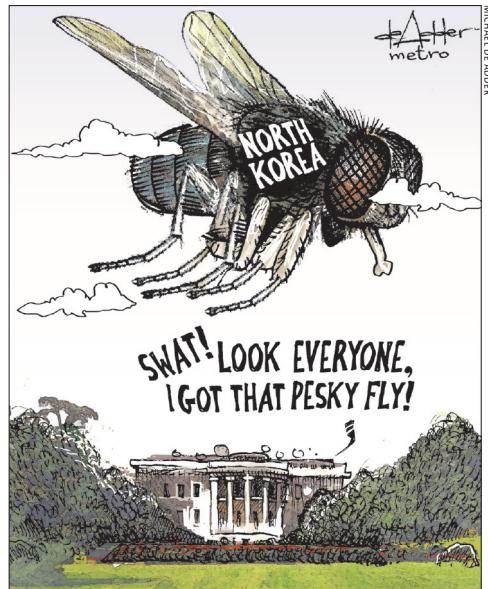

That, in and of itself, shows how successful the LGBT community has been in gaining acceptance as a fundamental part of our city.

This city has changed a lot. In the '70s, I didn't ever think that I would see the mayor in a Gay Pride Parade, that members of the police force would face off against members from the LGBT community in a soft-

CEO defends bonuses

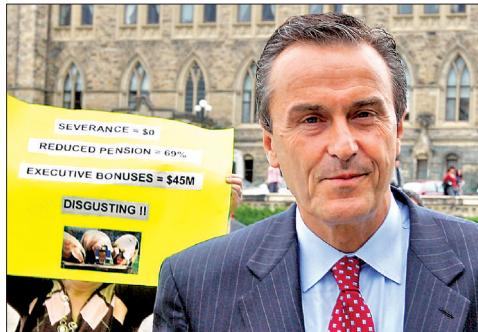

Payments help retain value at Nortel: Zafirovski

Nortel Networks Corp. CEO Mike Zafirovski was forced to defend his company's decision to pay executives millions in retention bonuses even as the insolvent telecom equipment maker decided to stop paying severance to many laid-off workers.

"We are absolutely convinced that paying the annual incentive plan and the retention (plan) is critical to preserve value within Nortel," Zafirovski told a parliamentary committee in Ottawa.

Nortel has decided — with court approval — to pay out about $45 million US in bonuses for close to 1,000 employees, despite its filing for bankruptcy protection in January.

It had previously argued that the bonuses were

Business in brief

BANKING Canadian banks, ranked as the world's soundest, should use their large capital cushions to increase lending now that financial market uncertainty has abated, Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney suggested Thursday.

INFLATION Canada's annual inflation rate fell to a 15-year low of 0.1 per cent in May as cheaper gasoline and cars were partially offset by rising food costs, Statistics Canada said on Thursday.

Apple awaits CEO's return

TECH Investors and gadget lovers alike are awaiting the presumed re-emergence of Apple Inc.'s famed chief executive Steve Jobs, who has been on medical leave for about six months.

The consumer electronics giant remains mum on exactly when and how Jobs will come back, repeating the familiar mantra that Apple looks forward to his return at the end of June.

It is possible, analysts say, that Jobs could soon shift to a new post that would allow him to focus on big-picture issues and products, while chief operating officer Tim Cook, currently acting CEO, manages the company.

Throughout history the great religions have spoken to the return of a future teacher. The Christians hope for the return of the Christ, the Buddhists look for the coming of a new Buddha, while the Muslims await the Imam Madhi, the Hindus a reincarnation of Krishna and the Jews the Messiah. How will we know Him? Surely He will ring our hearts with a message of sharing, justice and brotherhood. How can we prepare the way for Him? Each day brings opportunities, large and small, to act in favor of unity and justice. Our willingness to share will make a real difference in our world.

Handbook for a frugal life

In tight times, finding extra dollars in unexpected places is even more important. With tips, tricks and information that range from long-term savings to instant cash in your pocket from Kerr K. Taylor, creator of Squawkfox.com, 397 Ways to Save Money makes living within a budget easy — and even fun.

Written by an average Canadian whose frugal ways have saved her thousands, this accessible guide offers saving savvy that you don't need to be a financial planner to understand.

By looking in every corner of every room in your house, from the kitchen to the closet, and by considering the needs of every member of your family, from your toddler to your dog, 397 Ways to Save Money will help you search out thousands of dollars in savings without changing what you love about your life.

Metro picked up the following excerpt, used with permission from HarperCollins Canada:

Eating is an expensive fact of life. With three meals a day plus snacks and goodies, the cost of buying and preparing food is considerable and is not getting any cheaper. The average Canadian spends over 10 per cent of their yearly expenses on food, and this doesn't account for dining in restaurants or ordering takeout meals. But despite the obvious need to eat, shopping for food and feeding your family doesn't have to be a financial strain.

Because decisions in the kitchen affect both your pocketbook and your waistline, some simple planning is all that's needed to maximize your savings without sacrificing your health.

Get your food for free by watching the price scanner.

Mistakes on electronic price scans are common at the grocery store. The U.S. Federal Trade Commission has found that errors occur in one out of every 32 regularly priced items. Errors are more common on sale items, with one out of 28 items being overcharged to consumers.

Watch as your items are scanned at the checkout and you could save many dollars per month and even score free food. The Retail Council of Canada has a Code of Practice for scanner accuracy that states, "If the scanned price of a qualifying item at the checkout of a participating store is higher than the price displayed in the from costly takeout meals and restaurants bills. You might even save on gas by being super-organized because you won't need to make a second trip!

Bottom line: Make a free grocery list and buy only the foods you need for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Even if you save only $10 on impulse buys each week, making a list can really pay off — to the tune of $520 a year.

Skip the supermarket aisles and shop around the edges.

The perimeter of your supermarket is stocked with the most healthful and frugalicious foods; items like fresh produce, dairy, bulk foods, meats, organics and frozen vegetables are ripe for the picking. Passing on the aisles where highly packaged and marketed items are stocked, and staying on course around the edges of your supermarket can save you five per cent to 20 per cent on your grocery bill. Foods high in nutrition and low on food science and marketing claims bring greater value to your family meals.

Bottom line: Limiting your exposure to the supermarket aisles and shopping around the edges can save you between $7.50 and $30 on a $150 trip to the grocery store and delivers more nutritional value to your dinner table per dollar spent.

Eat less meat.

To save hundreds on groceries, try using less meat in your family meals. You don't have to go vegetarian — simply try some meatless dishes even just once a week by adding alternatives like protein-rich beans to a few dishes.

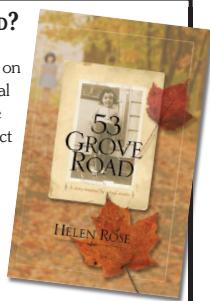

Switching from animal protein to bean protein is a wonderfully frugal way to add some dollars to your bank account and find some variety in your diet. Soak and cook dried beans to become the ultimate money-saving bean counter.

Bottom line: Eating less meat and more meat alternatives like dried beans bought in bulk can save you hundreds on your grocery bill.

For example, enough chicken to feed dinner to a hungry family of four costs around $15, while the beans for an equally filling meal cost under $2. Eating like this once a week saves over $650 a year.

VOYAGEURS CUP Needing to beat the Montreal Impact by an improbable four goals on Thursday night, Toronto FC did one better and pulled out a 6-1 victory at Montreal. The five-goal victory was enough to lift TFC over the Vancouver Whitecaps to capture the Voyageurs Cup as Canadian champions. They now move on to the CONCACAF Champions League.

Ovechkin cleans up

Washington left wing Alexander Ovechkin won both the Hart Trophy and Lester B. Pearson award while Boston took home four honours on Thursday as the National Hockey League saluted the best of the 2008-09 season.

Ovechkin, who also won the Maurice Richard trophy for leading the league in goals, finished the season with 56 goals and 54 assists and beat out Pittsburgh's Evgeni Malkin and Detroit's Pavel Datsyuk. He became the first repeat Hart-winner since Dominik Hasek captured the award in 1997 and 1998. He took 115 first-place votes while Malkin garnered 12 and Datsyuk four.

"This trophy is all about my team and the organization," said Ovechkin. "I love

The Lester B. Pearson award, which is handed out to the NHL's Most Outstanding Player as voted by fellow league players, was captured by Ovechkin for the second straight season and he became the first player to accomplish that since Jaromir Jagr did it in 1999 and 2000.

Malkin led the league with 113 points and had 35 goals and 78 assists to capture the Art Ross Trophy and he also won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the play-off's MVP for helping the Penguins win their third Stanley Cup trophy.

Moreau takes King Clancy Memorial

NHL AWARDS Edmonton Oilers captain Ethan Moreau has been named this year's recipient of the King Clancy Memorial Trophy.

The award is presented annually to the player who best exemplifies leadership qualities on and off the ice and has made a noteworthy humanitarian contribution in his community.

The presentation was made earlier today at the 2009 NHL Awards Gala at the Pearl Concert Theater, located inside the Palms Hotel in Las Vegas.

The main focus of Moreau's work in the community has been the Edmonton Oilers Community Foundation's Inner City High School project. Last year, the EOFC announced plans a re-development of a new Inner City High.

Megan Fox admits to gaining the pounds for her role in Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen.

Transforming Fox

Actress weighs in on role in blockbuster sequel

Megan Fox is known for her curves, but for Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen, even those weren't enough for notoriously picky director Michael Bay.

"He's not super-big on really scrawny girls. He likes more muscular types," Fox explains while sucking on a piece of candy.

"I gained eight pounds, and I ended up gaining another eight pounds during the filming of the movie."

For all her infamous beauty, Fox confesses she has horrible eating habits. "I eat maybe once a day, and I eat at 10 at night. I don't eat a lot. I'm not a healthy person," she says. And when it comes to exercising, she doesn't fare much better.

"I usually make it to one training session a week."

But the young actress, known for speaking her mind, realizes that type of lifestyle can't endure. "I'm 22. I mean, I'm prepared for when I hit 28 and I have to change my whole s— up, but for now if I can get away with it, I'm going to do it."

One thing Fox hasn't

been able to get away with is keeping a low profile, not when she regularly tops men's magazine hot lists and her every move is chronicled by the paparazzi. But Fox takes a surprisingly diplomatic view of the celebrity industrial complex.

"Whoever they're taking pictures of, that's not you," she says. "You let it happen because that's a job, and I have to respect that job. It's how they pay their bills and how they feed their families. I can't s— on them for doing that."

While she's been enjoying the big-budget playgrounds of the Transformers movies, Fox is looking forward to a smaller project hitting theatres this fall: Jennifer's Body, written by Oscar-winner Diablo Cody.

"It's a really dark comedy," Fox says of Cody. "She's like a postmodern feminist or whatever."

REVIEW The premise of The Proposal seems so obvious and ripe for comic potential that it's amazing no one thought to make it until now: A hard-nosed boss (Sandra Bullock) tries to avoid deportation back to Canada by claiming to be engaged to her beleaguered assistant (Ryan Reynolds).

The charade gets out of hand when they travel to Alaska to visit his family. It's just a shame the filmmakers decided to do it with such by-the-numbers romantic comedy execution (complete with a winking-at-the-audience race to the airport).

The movie succeeds despite its flaws, though, thanks primarily to the chemistry between its two leads. The older woman dynamic seems downright subversive by romantic comedy standards, and Bullock and Reynolds easily show why it shouldn't be. And their comic timing is perfectly matched.

As much fun as she's having with the character, Bullock still seems to be holding back, though. In the first ten minutes, the filmmakers spend an awful lot of time telling the audience how horrible she is as a boss, how everyone fears and dislikes her, but they don't let Bullock do anything that would warrant such a reputation — most likely out of fear of moviegoers deciding her employees are right. She pulls off the second half of the equation, though, in humanizing Margaret and showing the vulnerability underneath without making it too cloying.

Some small-town gags land poorly, such as the oddball (Oscar Nuñez) working every conceivable job or the only Internet access being a coin-operated dial-up modem — as if a well-to-do estate like Andrew's family wouldn't have WiFi, even in Alaska. Then there are plot elements that are brought up only to be dropped all together, like Malin Akerman's red herring of a cute ex-girlfriend.

But even when the audience can see the next gag coming a mile away, the film still shines thanks to the performances of Bullock, Reynolds and the scene-stealing Betty White as Andrew's conniving granny. White's adorable, off-beat performance alone is reason enough to see it.

Cameron Diaz gets serious

Star plays mother of girl with terminal illness in My Sister's Keeper

Cameron Diaz thought it was hilarious last year when the paparazzi thought she'd shaved her head. In My Sister's Keeper, Diaz plays the mother of a girl with cancer, and at one point in the film her character takes out the clippers out of solidarity with her daughter.

Of course, mix Diaz, a bald cap and an outdoor film shoot with photographers who watch her every move hovering, and what you get is an inevitable brouhaha.

"They say what they want to say to sell their pictures," says Diaz, who's no stranger to odd claims being published about her. But she still has her flowing blonde locks today, thankfully.

"If I shaved my head and my hair was this long right now, they would have me in a lab somewhere," she jokes.

"Kerastase or L'Oréal would have already taken me somewhere."

Bald caps aside, the film involved taking on some heavy subject matter. After Diaz's character discovers her daughter's condition, she makes the controversial decision to have another child for the express purpose of providing the to save her older child's life.

For the actress, part of taking on such a complex serious role successfully means being able to leave work at the office at the end of the day.

"You have to put things to the side and you have to be yourself and be who you are and be with the people who support you," she says. And as casual as she tries to be, all this work dealing with terminal illness still got into her head.

"It makes you really think about what you're putting into your body and what's out there that can damage you," Diaz says. "There is a reason. It can't just be coincidence that everyone's getting sick."

Away We Go too pleasant

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Away We Go is a sweet little film nearly undone by its pleasantness. Following a young couple (John Krasinski and Maya Rudolph) expecting their child, the film forgets to give its leads anything to do except react to the world around them.

Krasinski puts his inherent likeability to good use, but it's tough to distinguish his Burt here from his Jim on The Office, except that Burt is more of a nerd and has a beard. The real revelation here is Rudolph, whose comic chops are well-documented. But as the very pregnant Verona, she spreads out comfortably into a quiet performance that's surprisingly moving. With the subtlest of eyebrow raises, she carries the emotional centre of the film.

Director Sam Mendes also shines here, adding more evidence that he's adept in pretty much any genre or style thrown at him. It's as if his signature style is not having a signature style, which is refreshing.

Unfortunately, the efforts the director and his two leads are left in the lurch by the script, which hangs the story on a central relationship free of conflict. It's clear from the start that these nice, friendly people really do love each other. And by the end of the film, they seem to feel pretty much the same.

The conflict, if there is any, comes in Burt and Verona looking for a new place to call home. Their search leads to a parade of entertaining cameos, including hilarious turns by Allison Janney, Jim Gaffigan and Maggie Gyllenhaal, among others, and a surprisingly poignant meditation on modern parenting and regret by Tom Messina and Melanie Lynskey — an emotional note so strong it only makes the placidness of the main characters all the more jarring.

Plenty of silly fun in Year One

Year One

Director: Harold Ramis
Stars: Jack Black, Michael Cera, David Cross
Classification: 14A
Rating:

PHIL BROWN
 for Metro Canada

Year One wants to be one of those rare comedic treats: The smart dumb comedy. It's prehistoric parable that satirizes the foundations of human civilization, while also tossing in plenty of poo jokes to please the masses.

Unfortunately the overall balance leans more towards easy laughs than social commentary, but you have to admire the intent and the hit-to-miss joke ratio is pleasingly high. It's what should be expected from the latest comedy from director Harold Ramis (the brains behind Animal House, Groundhog Day and other comedy classics).

As we know from the trailer, Jack Black and Michael Cera star as a pair of slacker cavemen incapable of either hunting or gathering. However, this material comprises only the set-up of the movie.

The pair quickly leave their tribe to explore the world and soon find themselves stumbling onto a variety of biblical characters and settings including Cain and Abel, Isaac and Abraham, and the original party town, Sodom.

For Ramis, it's a step back to his early days of Caddyshack, a ramshackle ensemble comedy that lives and dies on the improv of the cast. Year One has the comedic energy and unpredictability of those early movies, but also has their sketch-comedy structure and narrative messiness.

The film ends on message preaching individuality over a reliance on society or religion. It's smart and appropriate, but feels awkwardly shoehorned into a film that works best as sketch comedy.

Black and Cera are at their best as the leads, playing their well-worn comedic personas and doing it well. Virtually every sequence comes with a scene-stealing cameo, but special notice should go to David Cross' cynical Cain, Hank Azaria's circumcision obsessed Abraham ("It's going to be a sleek look"), and Oliver Platt's sleazy high priest who insists on getting hairy-chested oil rubs from Cera (every bit as hilarious and disgusting as it sounds).

Year One is pleasant escapism with a brain. Sure, it's more like Mel Brooks' silly History Of The World: Part 1 than Monty Python's satirical masterpiece Life Of Brian, but at least it provides audiences with the opportunity to giggle at irreverent humour for 90 minutes without feeling guilty afterwards.

No Age grin and bear it

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

There have been plenty of unusual gigs over the years — bands have played on the back of trucks, on buses, on an oil rig — but has any group ever played an original set of music to a movie about bears? That's exactly what Los Angeles duo No Age did last week in Seattle.

"It's an idea we've been talking about for a while," says Dean Allen Spunt, the band's drummer and singer. "It's a movie that Randy (Randall, the band's guitarist) really liked when he was a kid."

The noise pop group performed a 90-minute set of music specifically created for The Bear, an '80s French film shot in British Columbia that follows two bears as they develop a friendship and escape from hunters. It sounds like a wacky, and challenging, project, but Spunt says it wasn't as difficult to pull together as he thought it would be.

"We just watched the movie and felt out the emotions," he explains. No Age performed the live soundtrack at the Seattle International Film Festival, but the band is unlikely to bring its Bear show on the road.

What people can expect is a set filled with the infectious sonic blasts and grunge-like melodies found on their sophomore record Nouns. Spunt says the twosome might also play some tunes off their forthcoming EP, which they just recently finished recording.

The four-song disc, which will be out in September or October, will be more sample heavy than their last record Spunt reveals.

"We've always done samples, but it's a little more present now," he says. "I figured out a way to make them sound better. We write more with them rather than use samples to augment our songs."

"We've tried to expand things and maybe go in different areas that we wouldn't go in," Spunt adds. "It seems to me it sounds nicely saturated. I feel it's like a really nice painting."

Some fans will likely be disappointed that the group isn't releasing a full-length, but Spunt says the band has always been interested in "quick seg-

"I think concentrating on a full record is a lot of work," he says. "Sometimes you just need to get something out, something smaller. An EP with four or five songs is a good thing to have. Some of my favourite records are EPs."

Iron Maiden voyage a true adventure

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

Rock stars having their own jets isn't anything new. Zepelin and the Stones were first. U2 always charters one for its tours. And when Metallica goes on tour, each member has his own jet so they can fly off away from each other between gigs. Meanwhile, the road crews are stuck in their bus bunks, humping tons of gear the old-fashioned way — in convoys of semi-trailers.

Then there's Iron Maiden. Not only did the group have its own 757 done up with a special Iron Maiden livery, the band, crew and equipment all flew together. And in command of the flight deck? The group's singer.

During his solo period, Bruce Dickinson realized that maybe he'd better think about the future. "I thought to myself, 'I don't know if I'm going to be able to make a living out of being a musician in 10 years,'" he told me during a recent interview. "Maybe I should have a second job or something."

After taking up flying as a hobby, Dickinson took a series of professional pilot exams and through a happenstance meeting with an old friend (a rock radio DJ turned pilot), Bruce ended up with a first officer posting with a British passenger airline. For the last eight years, he's been flying both 757s and 737s for Astraeus, a company that provides planes and crews to other airlines. When it came to the Iron Maiden world tour, Dickinson went to Astraeus and leased an idle aircraft.

"It just happens that one of the absolute dead times for airline and charter work is January and February. So it worked out perfectly for us to take an aircraft out of the line for two months. The problem was (our equipment) wouldn't fit. The airplane just wasn't physically big enough. So we had to get a full modification of the aircraft approved."

After $500,000 in upgrades, Ed Force One (officially "Flystar 666" to air traffic controllers) was routed from west to east, carefully scheduled to minimize jet lag and to make sure the band (and its singer/pilot) reached maximum energy for 9 p.m. — showtime. Bruce flew the band and crew through 112,000 kilometres while also playing 23 concerts on five continents in just 24 days. The experiment was captured on camera by a Canadian documentary film crew and the film, Iron Maiden: Flight 666, is now available on DVD.

Take that, Bono.

The Nintendo DSi is sleek and small, which makes it the perfect size to tuck into any bag and take it along with you everywhere you go.

New DSi offers fun with photos, music

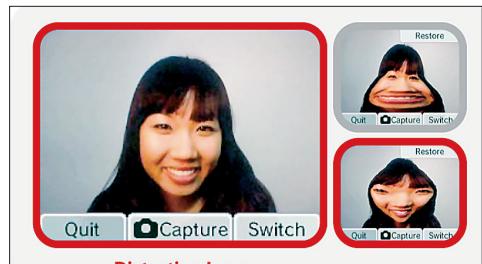

KATHY BUCKWORTH
for Metro Canada

I am a very popular mom. With my own kids. Why? Because I have a brand new Nintendo DSi. And they have to be extra nice to me to get a turn.

They actually have their own Nintendo DS units, which have been well-used and loved by all four of them, from age seven to 17. But the new DSi was clearly developed with a, ahem, more "mature" crowd in mind. Or so I keep telling them as I held on to it, saying, "One more minute kids, one more minute."

Let's start with the camera. "Fun" and "Photo" come together with the DSi. With a few pen taps, you can quickly capture yourself, or the rest of the world — anywhere you want. Amazing quality and easy to do. And the fun part? You can stretch these shots out by dragging the pen across the screen — distorting family members to the unrecognizable or emphasizing features for maximum comic effect. (I think People magazine must have used one of these for some of their "worst" swimsuit issues.)

Add in comments, draw

With a few pen taps on the Nintendo DSi, you can take pictures of yourself — and others — and distort them for comic effect.

Mischief Lens

glasses, frame photos, change colours, turn your brother's face into a kaleidoscope, look at mirror images ("Just my good side!"), and because this unit is sleek and small, you can tuck it into any bag and take it along for instant photo fun anywhere (such as waiting at a doctor's office). Pop a photo card into the unit and you can take it out and download the photos onto your computer for printing and sharing with others.

I loved taking a picture, erasing a portion of it, and inserting my own or someone else's face. I've always felt that I should own Cindy Crawford's body; and that my seven-year-old son should get the chance to be a Transformer. Done.

While you won't believe your eyes with the fun you can have with the built-in camera, hearing isn't necessarily believing either with the Nintendo DSi Sound function. Pop in your own sound card and make your music/words sound as though they're being transmitted through a radio circa 1920. Black Eyed Peas — Harry Truman style. Love it. Record your kids' voices and then play around with them by mixing them to sound like a parakeet. (Sometimes the difference is minimal depending on your child's natural voice, as I discovered.)

Between sights and sounds, the DSi is a great addition to any road trip with your kids, a rainy afternoon around the kitchen table, or even under a shady tree at a picnic or outside event. I like it so much, I tried to take a picture of myself on my DSi enjoying my DSi — and it is possible. Now if I can just convince my kids that a "MommyMinute" lasts much longer than the standard 60 seconds.

The Nintendo DSi features a Sound function.

Jonas bros. ready to invade Toronto

Amid busy schedule, trio will enter new territory when they host MMVAs

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

If there's any doubt whether or not the Jonas Brothers are still one of the most sought after bands in the world, just look at their travel schedule.

"We're en route to the New York airport, then going to Madrid, then London and then to Texas," says Kevin Jonas, the oldest member of the musical family.

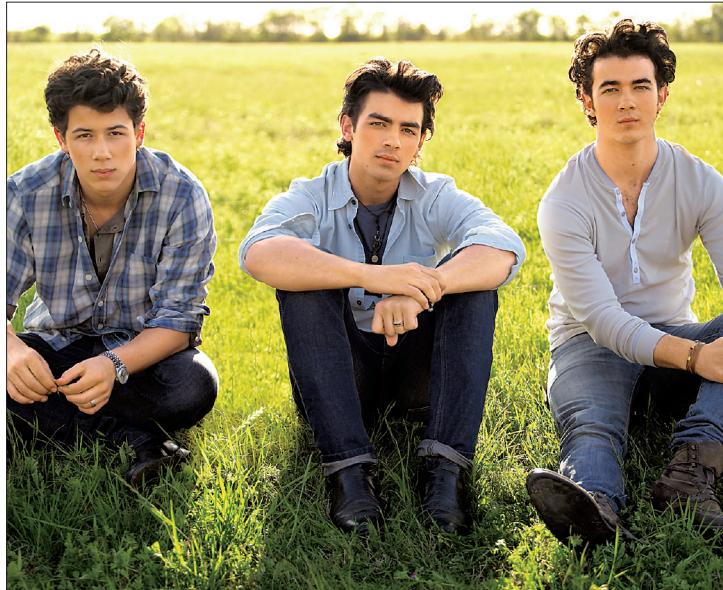

"And then we're with you guys."

It's that last stop that thousands of Toronto teens are most excited for — the band is heading north to host Sunday's Much Music Video Awards. While they've been to Toronto before, this will be the first time the trio has ever hosted an awards show.

"This is a big deal for us," says Jonas. "We've been part of award shows, but never done something like this."

Unfortunately, says Jonas, he hasn't been able to have as much of a hand in the show's planning as he would like. There's just not enough time to do everything he explains.

"We have a tour to focus

The Jonas Brothers will host the MuchMusic Video Awards this Sunday night.

on, we have a new album out (it was released this past Tuesday), the awards show, so we have a lot on our plate," he says, adding that even though they're busy, "everything is checked off by us, so our hands are in everything we do."

However, fans can expect the band to play songs off their latest record, Lines, Vines and Trying Times, though Jonas "apologizes in advance because it might be a little crazy, we haven't had a chance to practice at all."

It's likely the throngs of screaming followers won't care what the band does, as long as they just show up. In fact, hordes of tweens and teens camped out for two days to get tickets to the MMVAs. All this fanfare is just another day in the life of the Jonas Brothers, who have gone from little known teen band to Disney darlings and music moguls.

"It's incredible," says Jonas about the success the band has had.

"We don't take anything for granted. We're living so many people's dreams and it's a huge opportunity."

"But being idolized by 13-year-olds can't last forever, and Disney's stamp of approval will eventually dry out. Jonas doesn't reveal what future plans he has, though, only pointing out that the group have control over their career.

"We are growing up, and while Disney's been an amazing partner, we're just making music we love," he says.

"No one's telling us what to do."

INTRODUCING something new
AND worth sharing
FROM BREYERS® DOUBLE CHURN

this is love

This spring, Breyers® Double Churn ice cream is introducing three new crave-worthy flavours that you'll fall in love with instantly. Enter, Dark Chocolate Velvet, Banana Cream Pie and Chocolate Cheesecake – all indulgent and all you'll need to share the love.

Breyers Double Churn has created a few simple tips to help you share the love with ice cream...

- Host a girls' night-in with your closest friends and catch up over a "buffet" of new Breyers Double Churn flavours. Give everyone special bowls and spoons so they can try a bit of each or a lot of their favourite.
- Place a scoop of each new flavour on a tapas-style platter. Top each with an ode to its core, natural ingredient. A small slice of banana on Banana Cream Pie; a cocoa bean on Dark Chocolate Velvet and milk chocolate shavings on Chocolate Cheesecake.
- With everything from soup to seafood being served as shots at dinner parties, try serving the new flavours in shot glasses to give your guests a teaser taste of these three new indulgences. Make sure the Breyers Double Churn flavours are a bit soft to ensure easy "shooting."
- Try Breyers Double Churn ice cream cubes when you're having a get together or a night at home with your loved one. Put the ice cream in ice cubes trays, let harden, and then 'pop out' the flavours to serve.
- Try a Banana Cream Bellini Freeze this summer. Blend a scoop of Breyers Double Churn Banana Cream Pie ice cream, a quarter cup of peach nectar and a cup of ice. Serve in a martini glass and enjoy with friends!

Brangie's $1M charity gift

PHILANTHROPY Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie have donated another $1 million US to charity, femalefirst.co.uk reports. The couple pledged the sum through their Jolie-Pitt Foundation to help refugees fleeing the Taliban in Pakistan.

Earlier this week, Jolie — who has visited Pakistan three times in recent years — recorded a message highlighting the plight of displaced people living in war torn regions.

The 34-year-old actress — who is a Goodwill Ambassador for the United Nations High Commission on Refugees — said in the video: "Please don't turn away. Refugees are the most vulnerable people on Earth. Every day, they are fighting to survive. They deserve our respect. Please do not forget them. Remember them on this day. World Refugee Day." World Refugee Day is on Saturday.

The donation comes just days after they gave $1 million to St. John's Hospital in Pitt's hometown of Springfield, Mo. The money will be used to establish an endowment fund to pay for children's cancer specialists and will also go towards building a new pediatric unit.

I'm not a sex symbol: Ryan

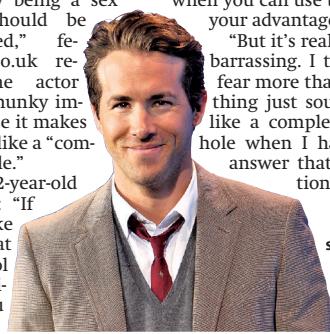

TOUGH STANCE Ryan Reynolds thinks people who enjoy being a sex symbol should be "euthanized," femalefirst.co.uk reports. The actor hates his hunky image because it makes him seem like a "complete a-hole."

The 32-year-old actor said: "If you take any of that sex symbol stuff seriously, you need to be euthanized — ASAP! There are moments when you can use that to your advantage.

"But it's really embarrassing. I think I fear more than anything just sounding like a complete a-hole when I have to answer that question."
